SUPPLIER DEVELOPMENT

The LSBA, in partnership with the Supply Chain Management (SUP), is developing a small business training and supplier development program that will increase the capabilities of businesses to participate in new markets and respond to a more stringent quality environment.

To get a current schedule of supplier training you may visit our web site:

http://www.lanl.gov/orgs/cr/cr_lsba.shtml or send an e-mail request to lsba@lanl.gov

The LSBA offers training opportunities for small businesses, in partnership with the following organizations:

- New Mexico Procurement Assistance Program
- LANL Small Business Office
- LANL Supply Chain Management
- Small Business Administration
- Small Business Development Centers
- Northern New Mexico Supplier Alliance

Small Business Advocacy (LSBA) Mission Statement

To promote the interests of small businesses to Laboratory personnel by encouraging the utilization of their products and services.

LSBA PROGRAM

A portion of the Small Business Office functions have been reassigned to the Laboratory Small Business Advocacy (LSBA). The LSBA is part of the Community Relations Office (CRO).

Small business outreach duties are now handled by LSBA, which include identifying business resources to match procurement opportunities within the Laboratory, communicating supplier concerns through appropriate channels, providing supplier training, and other outreach related activities. The LSBA will continue to work closely with the Small Business Office and the Procurement Organization to promote small business interests.

ESPANOLA RESOURCE CENTER

An Espanola Outreach Resource Center has been opened at the Northern New Mexico Community College. The office will serve as a resource center for the business communities to learn of opportunities and avenues of increasing their business relationships with LANL. Procurement personnel from LANL and KSL are also welcome to utilize the center for networking purposes and to fulfill procurement requirements.

LSBA PERSONNEL

LSBA personnel can work with you to match your business interest, products, or services with current LANL procurement opportunities. For more information please contact the following LSBA personnel:
